

I think a frontal crash test requirement is necessary. Cars are being built to go faster and faster, and the youth of America is getting wilder and wilder. There is no price for the value of a life and this is why we should go through great lengths to make sure all crash requirements for the latest cars are not only meant, but exceeded. There should be no exceptions of vehicles.